

Products obtained through sucrose co-crystallisation with food additives

Nicolae BUȚU, Costel APETREI and Traian FLOREA

"Dunărea de Jos" University, Chemistry Department, 47, Domnească Street, 6200 Galați, România

Abstract The perspective on sucrose as a food ingredient could be changed by a new technology that permits sugar to play a new role accomplished by spontaneous crystallization. This paper describes the technology employed in order to obtain a free – flowing co-crystallized product (with sucrose and hydrogenated fats) and some laboratory trials regarding the product characteristics.

Keywords: sucrose co-crystallization, hydrogenated fats, peroxidation
